

Integrated Justice in Washington State

May 17-21, 2004

Activity in the JIN Program Office

Activities this week centered on Tuesday's Board meeting and on beginning testing for the Summary Offender Profile. I also spent some time packing up my office for new paint and carpet.

JIN Proof of Concept

With users from the King County Sheriff's Office and the Law Enforcement Support agency, we demonstrated our collaborative Proof of Concept to share and update stolen vehicle information. Everything went smoothly, and I think that those members and designees in attendance were impressed both by the speed of the implementation and the integration of the information exchange into three separate systems. I would be happy to repeat the demonstration for anyone who might be interested.

Summary Offender Profile

The Production server is now working, although there are a couple of Fortress issues that still need to be worked out. I am hoping to go live with the pilot deployment in Douglas and Thurston County by the end of May.

Miscellaneous

The FY 2004 NCHIP application and a letter from Marty Brown accepting the Board's recommendations were posted to the JIN web site (<http://www.jin.wa.gov/Grants/index.htm>).

I also met with Tom McBride (WAPA) to enlist his support in encouraging prosecutors to use the newly published JIN Charge Table (<http://www.jin.wa.gov/rcwtable.htm>) and briefed Kathy Lambert on Tuesday's meeting.

To subscribe or submit information to JINfo, send an E-mail to JINfo@dis.wa.gov.

On Thursday, I discussed JIN and the Priorities of Government with Larry Dzieza of DOL, who is also a member of the POG public safety review team. I believe that there is a real opportunity for this group to express support for the efficiencies to be gained by the centralization of certain services in the JIN Program Office.

On Friday I attended a daylong retreat for the Judicial Information Systems Committee. I answered questions about Summary Offender Profile and encouraged the JISC to collaborate with the Board on planning and related issues.

I also decided to update the 1998 JIN video, a “commercial” for a high-powered, fully operational Justice Information Network. I am hoping to shift the focus to integration deficiencies, which will help make the case for further funding.
